Description

The purpose of this workshop is to provide a forum for in-depth discussion of current political economy research on the aftermath of the global recession, and to facilitate interdisciplinary exchange among scholars. The workshop is in particular devised for younger scholars, ranging from advanced graduate students to early-career faculty members, who seek detailed and informed feedback on their work. Papers from all social disciplines taking positive or critical perspectives are welcome. The unifying theme of the workshop will be political and policy responses to the global crisis. Papers that put Turkey in comparative perspective with other emerging markets are explicitly welcome. Relevant paper topics include but are not limited to:

- Policy responses to economic crisis: Their political underpinnings, economic effectiveness, and legacy for future policy
- Governing in hard times: Challenges of governance, rising populism and/or authoritarianism, and prospects for democratic consolidation
- Social movements, protests, and voting: The bottom-up responses to the crisis, and their electoral implications
- Challenges of social policy: New approaches to address inequality and poverty
- Emerging powers in global governance: The challenge of reforming international institutions and accommodating rising powers
- Reimagining capitalism and beyond: Local and global debates over the future of capitalist society

Format

The workshop will feature 10-14 papers. Each paper will be assigned approximately 45 minutes (15 minutes for presentation and 30 minutes for discussion) and a formal discussant. In addition, the workshop will feature keynote lectures by Mine Eder (Boğaziçi University) on 29 July, and concluding remarks by Ziya Öniş and Caner Bakır (Koç University). Selected papers may afterwards be published as an edited book or a special issue of a journal.
